

Immigration.

The world cannot parallel the inducements offered by the South for industrious settlers. We have a country almost unlimited in its resources, blessed with every variety of climate, soil and productions, capable of becoming, under good government, the prosperous home of many times its present millions of inhabitants, and a great element in the future of the American Union. There must be some cause which counteracts these advantages and and up to the date of the ordinance, not conflicting with the Constitution and laws of the United States. The negro was remanded, by order of Gen. Canby, to the Superior Court of Granville, to be held to answer to the charge of larceny preferred. It would be an insult to the understanding of the General to suppose he did not know that, on a trial under this new indictment, the villain must be acquitted on the plea of former conviction.

A New Orleans thief was recently informed by advertisement that if he would return a watch, he should be informed where he could steal a watch worth two of it, and no questions asked.

The Cotton Tax in the Senate.

The House bill, which passed by a very large majority early in the session, repealing the tax on cotton, has been ignored by the Senate, and a substitute was passed by that body on Tuesday suspending the oper-

A Fall Riverian wants to bet that the London Times was perfectly neutral in its sentiments during the war, and the Fall River namesake of the Thunderer has taken him up for $100, to be given to some charitable institution.

A terrible revelation in the Canaan child murder is the finding among the debris in the cellar of the burned house, an axe, wrapped in one of Brown's old vests, covered with blood and with hair of the same color as that of the little girl.

LETTER OF HON. T. C. CLINGMAN

that some negro or half or quarter negro has shown a considerable degree of intelligence. Though no negro has approached the capacity of a superior white man, there are undoubtedly gradations of intellect among them. They must, however, be judged as a class. If I should say a particular boy of fifteen was so intelligent that he ought to be permitted to vote, the reply would be that boys of fifteen years of age were not generally intelligent enough to be trusted with the right of suffrage. I do not any one dispute the fact that a

It is idle to say that in some of the States negroes have had equal privileges with white race. They are not there numerous enough to make a contest or affect sensibly the rights of the majority. If all the insane persons in the United States could be counted, their numbers are not sufficient to produce any appreciable change in the political or social condition of the country. But one-half the population of Massachusetts are negroes, with equal rights, social and political, and yet the country would be a mixture of the two races as would be the case if the negroes of all the States were to be. If generations destroy the community as they do, then, it is impracticable to constitute a community jointly of white and black men and women. If we are brought to the great question, "Which race is to govern the United States?" The white race has not voluntarily came here from a love of liberty, and established their own political and social system. The negroes would have brought with them their own consciences. They have merely a right to demand, upon principles of justice, that the country which they have brought them here should not leave them in a worse condition than they were found in. Granting this, does any one suppose that the white negro race within the United States will physically and morally degenerate, in a much better condition than the negro race would have been if never removed from their own country? Are the white citizens

General Longstreet.

We understand that as this gentleman was passing Knoxville on Thursday days ago, two police officers came into the city to serve on him a warrant of arrest for treason. As they had the name wrong, he denied that he was the man called for, and while they went out to correct it the train moved off. We had supposed that the General had proved his loyalty so fully by his reconstruction letter that he was in no danger of annoyance.

Fifteen of the negro delegates to the Georgia Convention have found more the appropriate work digging cellars at a dollar and a half a day. Others wait at unconstructed tables or shave the chin of disloyal
